couples and taken their seats during the | pleasant terms to the presence of the Governor, Mayor, and other prominent gentle-

> This brought Governor Kemper to his feet, although, as he said, he only came as a spectator, and not to make a speech. He could not help, however, giving expression to his pleasure and delight at what he had seen and heard. He was greatly pleased to be able to congratulate the children upon the excellence of the exercises. The successes they had achieved were two-foldthe higher, inward, enduring success which they had attained under the long and careful training of their faithful teachers; and the pleasant and beautiful success se cured in the knowledge that they had given pleasure not only to the spectators present. but to those of their household. In refering to his own early days (he would not say how long ago, however.) and education, he said he never saw anything to compare with being educated in such an institution as this. He then urged upon the pupils would devolve upon them in after-life. They must take all the advantages now afforded them; for just as they availed cree overruling exceptions in part and susthemselves of the present opportunities, so to that extent their lives would be happy in the future. He joined with the Bishop in wishing them all the happiness they desired, and hoped that the laurels won would remain perpetually green.

Mayor Keiley next spoke to the young folks in a humorous and pleasant strain, which was greatly enjoyed by them as well as by the older ones.

SPECIMENS OF HANDIWORK.

After the children had left the hall the guests were invited to an adjoining room, where specimens of tapestry, needle-work wax-work, drawing, and painting were on exhibition. These specimens gave evidence of the practical part of the education imparted in the institution, and were highly complimented. The principal and most deserving of mention of all the articles on exhibition was the large amount of work done by the pupils during the year for the poor. This is one of the most praiseworthy features connected with the Academy.

After spending some time in this room the guests took their departure, expressing much delight at the afternoon's entertainment.

THE RICHMOND LITERARY ASSOCIATION .-We have noticed with interest and pleasure the steady growth of the above organization, with whose existence perhaps few of our readers are acquainted.

About three years ago several of our young business-men, anxious to improve themselves in the art of debate, met for the purpose of organizing a society. They were soon joined by others, and in a short time numbered some twenty-five or thirty.

Last year they obtained the room immediately opposite the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association, and upon the same floor. The room, though small, is conveniently located, and as most of the members are connected with the Young Men's Christian Association they can easily avail themselves of the advantages of an exten-

Some of the members indicate the most marked improvement, especially in extemporaneous debate, and have acquired the happy faculty of expressing themselves readily, fluently, and with graceful ease, upon the questions which are chosen for Robinson, a colored man. There is quite The constant interchange of liscussion. ideas, the habit of close attention, and the desire to refute the fallacious reasonings of an opponent, have contributed greatly to the mental improvement of the members. The rules adopted for the government of the society are those laid down in Cushing's Manual. Points of order and constitutionality are constantly raised and discussed, and familiarity with parliamentary rulings and practice is one of the most interesting features of the society.

All the young men connected with the association are engaged in active business, representing nearly all the trades and professions.

At the final celebration of the Society on next Monday, the 26th of this month, two medals are to be bestowed-one to the most improved debater, the other to the best debater. The latter is perhaps one of the most beautiful and costly medals given by any society in the State.

Mr. J. Randolph Tucker, Jr., has this year attained the highest prize, and Mr. Briggs the medal as the most improved debater. These medals are to be presented to the recipients by the Hon. A. M. Keiley. The by-laws limit the membership to thirty, so that each member has an opportunity to speak on regular debate about once in each six weeks. The questions are, however, opened to voluntary discussion after the close of each regular debate. Perhaps there is no similar organization of young men in this city so well calculated to strengthen, discipline, and develop the founded for their own improvement. QUALIFIED. - High-Constable-elect Thomas Whiting qualified yesterday, and will

Charles Felvy, John A. Golvin, and S. Benedict, drunk and creating a disturbance in the house of Lourette Duval, were dis charged, and officers instructed to arrest the parties if they are seen in the neighborhood again. John H. Tally (colored), charged with cursing, abusing, and threatening to beat J. W. McDonald, was discharged at the stationhouse. HENRICO COUNTY COURT,-The jury in the case of J. E. Fore, charged with forgery and horse-stealing, brought in a verdict vesterday morning of "not guilty." The ury had been held by the sheriff during the night previous, and only came to an agreement on yesterday morning. When they first retired there were eight for acquittal and four for conviction. Fore is still to be tried for trespass. A woman named Schonberger, a city prisoner, who had been remanded to the county jail, was taken so ill yesterday that Justice White gave an order that she should be taken home. The order was carried out, and Mrs. Schonberger was carried home in a carriage. CHARGED WITH SHOOTING A THOROUGH-

BRED HORSE.-About the 16th of May Charles H. Gordon, of Fauquier county, and a fine thoroughbred stallion shot in his stable at night. Mr. Gordon wrote to Governor Kemper asking that a detective be sent to work up the case. The matter was placed in the hands of Detective Knox, who after careful investigation, arrested Lewis strong case against accused. Robinson is supposed to have been inspired by revenge, because Mr. Gordon, wh peace, had him whipped for stealing.
